Preamble

The project REBOOTING THE FOOD SYSTEM, co-financed by the European Commission (DG INTPA)[1] within the DEAR Programme (Development Education and Awareness Raising[2]), is realised by a consortium of 14 civil society organisations[3] from 9 countries: it aims to raise awareness and mobilize young people in different European countries as agents of change towards a fairer and more sustainable food system on a local and global level, tackling global inequalities and ecological crises. How?

- With the development of a pan-European awareness campaign with and for young people, to promote values and good practices of agroecological principles in the EU and the Global South, and to give voice to women, girls, and people at the margins in creating a sustainable food system.
- With research, education and advocacy activities, developed by partners and active youth, for the empowerment of producers and workers in the global food system and the inclusion of agroecological principles and practices in European and national food system-related policies.

You can become part of the Reboot action, if you want to support the project's aims and make change happen! With this Call for Proposals, you as a civil society organisation (CSO) can be awarded and receive financial support to implement your own initiatives at national level to support the cause of Reboot.

The following sections provide details about the objectives of this call, eligible activities, applicants' requirements and evaluation criteria.

1 Background

Our global food system is broken: it favours a small number of "too-big-to-fail" corporations and exploits both our planet and people – and existing policies ensure that it stays that way. Globalisation has created a food system with global food supply chains and large industrial food corporations. Today, the industrialised food sector is a major contributor to climate change and exploitative labour practices while the exponential creation of farmland is displacing entire communities and destroying natural habitats. Human rights violations and environmental destruction can therefore be found in almost every supermarket product.

With the Green Deal and the Farm-to-Fork strategy (F2F), the EU has already set the course for change in European agriculture to make it future-proof, sustainable and fair. So far, however, implementation has failed. We aim to close this gap. Our vision is an agriculture based on agroecological principles as a counter-model to industrialised food production.

Among the people who would benefit the most from the agricultural transition into a green and fair future, there are the European Youth. Young People are the key to this action: all youth need to have a critical understanding of the global challenges linked to the food system, and on the other hand, their active role can be crucial in raising awareness of the different actors and their societies.

As a European coalition of 14 civil society organisations from 9 countries, we are joining forces in the EU-funded project "Rebooting the food system" and calling for an agricultural revolution now! We want to replace the broken system and create a new one based on fair and sustainable principles.

2 Objectives and priorities of the Call

Objectives

In order to increase the impacts of its action[4], Reboot will provide funding for at least one CSOs in each of the following countries: Portugal, Spain, Poland, Estonia, Slovakia, Czech Republic.

The Call for Proposals is open to grassroots-oriented CSOs with a strong track record and who reach out and work with youth. The awarded CSOs will, therefore, spread the messages of the Reboot project to a significantly high number of young people and access other youth interested in becoming active in the campaign.

In each eligible country, the objectives of this Call for Proposals are the following:

The first and major objective is to empower youth (15-30 years old, ideally also the less engaged ones) to actively mobilize, campaign and advocate for agroecology and for fair and sustainable food systems.

[4] Reboot project foresees 2 general objectives it aims to contribute to: 1) More EU citizens, in particular young people, are aware and have a critical understanding i) of the globally interdependent food system, and of agroecological principles and practices in the EU and the Global South, and ii) of the role of women and girls and other marginalised people in creating a sustainable food system; 2) Young people in the EU and partner countries engage actively in campaigning for i) the empowerment of producers and workers (in particular women and girls) in the global food system, and ii) the inclusion of agroecological principles and practices in European and national food system-related policies.

This document was produced with the financial support of the European Union. Its contents are the sole responsibility of Rebooting the Food System project and do not necessarily reflect the views of the European Union

The second objective, not obligatory but strongly encouraged, is to engage institutions providing food in promoting sustainable food system, also involving other target groups (to see all the Eligible target groups, see Section 4 - Eligible target groups and activities). This objective should also be achieved by involving youth directly or indirectly.

A transversal objective is to provide and share capacities and experiences for the Reboot project, in terms of: thematic expertise; capacity of involvement of determined target groups; innovative methodology for global citizens education, campaigning and advocacy initiatives; exchange of practices and challenges in the EU-Countries external to the consortium[5].

Priorities

a. Promote youth activism in a relevant and concrete way, following the Engagement Pyramid framework[6]: knowledge of the target groups, alliances with key stakeholders, capacity of involvement and mobilization are essential.
b. Promote youth activism among less involved and non-active youth on global food supply chains or agroecology.
c. Engage newly involved institutions providing food in promoting sustainable food system in the project with demonstrable commitment
d. Have an intersectional approach on human and labour rights in supply chains, with a focus on the interconnection with environmental aspects and gender topics.
e. Have a strong capacity-building and partnership approach, promoting multi-stakeholder collaborations among different target groups.
f. Involve people who are directly impacted by the negative effects of the global challenges (women, girls, migrants, youth and other marginalized people).

Project proposals will be assessed for eligibility and merit: the Merit Evaluation criteria are described in Section 7 - Merit Evaluation and define criteria for selecting the applicants who will receive the grant. Only applicants who meet all the eligibility criteria will be assessed for merit.

4 Eligible target groups and activities

Frameworks, Models, Definitions

Following the DEAR Programme indications, in the Reboot project the different target groups, which are the different groups of people impacted positively by the action, are allocated across a range of levels of engagement.

This document was produced with the financial support of the European Union. Its contents are the sole responsibility of Rebooting the Food System project and do not necessarily reflect the views of the European Union

To explore the intensity of engagement, the reference is the model of the 'Engagement Pyramid' made by the DEAR support team[7]: visually, it is a triangle in which Level 0 (Consumer of information about the project or its issues) is at the base, and Level 6 (Innovator: committed to the action/the issues and develops and implements (new) ideas for its promotion) at the top.

The Reboot project strategically reach and involve the following Target Groups as key stakeholders in the food system:

- Target Group 1 (TG1): EU youths (15-30 years), reached by campaign, educational, advocacy activities (levels 0-4 of the Engagement Pyramid);
- Target Group 2 (TG2): EU Youth (15-30 years) actively involved to implement the project (levels 5,6 of the Engagement Pyramid);
- Target Group 3 (TG3): Civil Societies Organisations involved in the project as partners or supporters of the activities (levels 0-3 of the Engagement Pyramid);
- Target Group 4 (TG4): young farmers and producers involved in the project as partners, experts, trainers, supporters of educational and/or campaign and/or advocacy activities; (levels 2-5 of the Engagement Pyramid);
- Target group 5 (TG5): institutions providing food (illustrative and non-exhaustive list of institutions: canteens and cafes of educational institutions such as schools and universities; municipalities and local authorities, national institutions, supermarkets, enterprises, CSOs, etc) newly involved in the project with demonstrable commitment to the project, which improve policies[8] and/or practices[9] supportive of Global Citizens Education and/or sustainable development/ sustainable food systems (levels 0-3 of the Engagement Pyramid);
- Target Group 6 (TG6): national and international political decision-makers addressed by advocacy activities (levels 3-6 of the Engagement Pyramid);

[7] See https://capacity4dev.europa.eu/library/engagement-pyramid-2pager_en?refpage=search

[8] "Improve policies" means: laws, strategies, action plans, regulations, procedures, budgets (or any other formalised practices that expect compliance in the organisation) that have been changed with project or direct grant contribution to better reflect GCE and/or sustainable development.

[9] "Improve practices" means: ways in which things are ordinarily done within an organisation, which have been changed with project or direct grant contribution to better reflect GCE and/or sustainable development. Practices often result from organisational culture and habits that have accumulated over time. They may or may not conform with the organisation's policies.

Eligible target groups (primary and secondary)

Under this Call for Proposals, projects must focus primarily on TG2 (15-30-year-old EU Youth actively involved in implementing the project) and TG5 (institutions providing food that are newly involved in the project with demonstrable commitment): TG2 and TG5 are therefore defined as the *primary target groups of this Call for Proposals.

Secondarily, activities might reach or involve the other target groups, namely TG1; TG3; TG4, TG6, which are considered the secondary target groups of this Call for Proposals.

Eligible Activities

Coherently with the objectives, priorities and target groups above described, project proposals should focus on:

- Active involvement of youth (TG2) for the promotion of agroecology and fair food systems, reaching via those further youth (TG1), CSOs (TG3) and/or young farmers/producers (TG4), and/or political decision makers (TG6), to spread awareness on sustainable food system models and to incorporate agroecological principles at local, national, EU and global levels.

This document was produced with the financial support of the European Union. Its contents are the sole responsibility of Rebooting the Food System project and do not necessarily reflect the views of the European Union

- Engagement of institutions providing food (TG5) to inform and support them in promoting, adopting, implementing, monitoring, modifying or further improving policies or practices supportive of sustainable food systems/ sustainable development with a focus on food. Also in this case, youth should be actively involved in the implementation of the project (TG2), and further TGs can be involved or reached (TG3, TG4, TG6).

Given these premises, the following kinds of activities are considered eligible under this Call for Proposals:

- Activities that empower active citizens to actively campaign and advocate for a fair and agroecological food system by participating in training and exchange activities. Youth can not only participate in training and exchange activities, but also take an active role in them, and where applicable also implement their own activities. Engaging and participatory approaches should be included (e.g. Global Citizens Education framework, peer to peer education, participatory learning method…).
- Campaign, communication and outreach activities, involving youth (TG2) - preferably co-designed and co-realised with youth - to reach out to CSOs, young farmers/ food producers, addressing political decision-makers and institutions providing food to incorporate agroecological principles at local, national, EU and global levels. Creative campaign methodologies for campaigning both online and in presence will be favoured.
- Advocacy activities at local, national and international level.
- Management activities that contribute to strengthening the involvement and participation in capacity-building of the Reboot project, promoting mutual learning processes, and sharing tools, methodologies, themes, and practices with partner organisations of the Reboot project. Management activities include (Illustrative and non-exhaustive list): organisation of trainings/meetings, elaboration of factsheets, toolkits or other training materials, promotion of innovative collaborative tools and methods, etc. Awarded CSOs are expected to participate in-presence and online meetings with the Reboot consortium.

  In their budget proposal, applicants must include funds (travel, per diems, accommodation) for their participation in European consortium, networking, and exchange in presence meetings: this will be mandatory for a capacity building meeting in winter 2025/2026 in France; this will be not mandatory but functional to coordination and capacity building needs for further three coordination meetings: in Hungary in summer 2025, Romania in summer 2026 and/or Italy in winter/spring 2027. Each project proposal should proportionate this not mandatory participation to its logic of intervention, and the contribution to the transversal objective of this Call (to provide and share capacities and experiences for the Reboot project: see Section 2 Objectives and Priorities of this Call).

  Furthermore, proposals should foresee online participation in the appropriate project's working groups and task forces, as well as online coordination with the IFSTP coordinator, the project coordinator, and the consortium.

5 Project duration

The project duration is scheduled as the following: the start of the project is ~~7th~~ 28th March 2025, and the ending is 30th November 2026. Accordingly, the estimated project duration is 20 months.

6 Budget

The indicative amount made available for this Call for Proposals is EUR 60.000 (sixty thousand) per each eligible country (Portugal, Spain, Poland, Estonia, Slovakia, Czech Republic).

At least one project per country will be funded; therefore, the maximum financial support is limited to 60.000 EUR per third party project proposal: project proposals can be below this indicative amount, depending on the adequacy of the budget to the results and activities of the project (financial efficiency: see Section 7- Merit Evaluation).

Any grant requested awarded under this Call for Proposals will be financed 100% of the total eligible costs.

The right is reserved not to award all available funds, in case of insufficient quality of the proposals received and/or in case of insufficient number of the proposals received.

The budget shall be indicated in EUR, as described in Annex 2.

In their budget proposal, applicants must include funds (travel, per diems, accommodation) for their participation in European consortium, networking and exchange meetings: mandatory for a capacity building meeting in winter 2025/2026 in France and, when appropriate to coordination, review and evaluation meetings in Hungary in summer 2025, Romania in summer 2026 and/or Italy in winter/spring 2027 (see Section 4 – eligible activities)

7 Merit Evaluation

Project proposals will be assessed for eligibility and merit. The Eligibility criteria described in Section 3 - Eligibility Criteria for Applicants, define the necessary conditions for participating in this Call for Proposals, while the Merit Evaluation criteria described below define criteria for selecting the applicants who will receive the grant. Only applicants who meet all the eligibility criteria will be assessed for merit.

The Merit Evaluation will be made through the constitution of the IFSTPs committee formed by Reboot project partners, and in particular: CIR, lead organization of Reboot, formally responsible for this Call for Proposals in its financial, MEAL and legal implications with Subgrantees; WeWorld, partner organization of Reboot, responsible for the coordination of the Call for Proposals' Applicants and Subgrantees.

The IFSTPs committee will be composed by at least 5 persons with complementary competences and knowledge (MEAL, Thematic, Technical, Methodological, Administrative), and will evaluate the merit of only the proposals considered eligible: the committee will draw up a ranking, indicating for each project proposal the merit evaluation awarded, on the basis of the evaluation grid described below and the additional scores.
